

NOBU & FRIENDS

Server Guide

Custom items, enchantments & tools

51.38.155.253:26086 - Live map: 51.38.155.253:29831

Paper 26.2 - Nothing to install: everything is server-side

Welcome

The server has several big custom systems, all built in-house: LoL-themed items with real abilities and stats, 16 custom armor-set enchantments based on champions, a vein miner & tree feller that keeps your XP, and multiple homes. This guide explains what everything does and how to get it. You don't need to install anything - it's all on the server.

☞ Every custom item and enchanted piece has a full description in its own tooltip - hover it in your inventory to see exactly what it does.

Custom Enchantments

There are 16 armor-set enchantments. They go on the four armor pieces only (no elytra) and the bonus grows with each enchanted piece you wear (1 to 4). Each piece can hold only one set enchant. They are real Minecraft enchantments, so they show up in the enchancing table, apply from enchanted books via an anvil, and can be rolled onto a book too.

COMMON SETS

Roll often at any decent enchanting table. Cheap to complete, and strong enough to carry you through an early world.

Blessing of the Green Father

COMMON

| Pieces | Effect |
|--------|--------|
|--------|--------|

- |   |                                                                                                      |
|---|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 1 | Crops and saplings near you grow fast on their own .                                          |
| 2 | You are never hungry (you forage as you walk).                                                |
| 3 | You can't harm calm animals , and they never fear you.                                        |
| 4 | Daisy , a stone golem, fights for you; ripe crops auto-harvest and replant around you. |

Common - infinite food and a farm that tends itself.

Brew of the Rabble Rouser

COMMON

| Pieces | Effect |
|--------|--------|
|--------|--------|

- |   |                                                                                 |
|---|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 1 | Eating always tops you up a little extra (bonus saturation).                    |
| 2 | Eating or drinking also grants a short random buff (Speed, Strength, Haste...). |
| 3 | Every potion effect on you lasts twice as long.                                 |
| 4 | Passive Resistance - you simply take less damage.                               |

Common - deletes the potion economy for you.

Chime of the Wandering Caretaker

COMMON

| Pieces | Effect |
|--------|--------|
|--------|--------|

- |   |                          |
|---|--------------------------|
| 1 | Permanent Speed . |
|---|--------------------------|

|   |                                                                     |
|---|---------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 2 | You are never hungry .                                       |
| 3 | Every 5th hit briefly stuns (slows) the target.              |
| 4 | Double-tap sneak to dash forward on the wind. (15s cooldown) |

Common - the traveller's set: move fast, never starve.

| Grace of the Starchild |                                                                                                  | COMMON |
|------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------|
| Pieces                 | Effect                                                                                           |        |
| 1                      | You slowly heal over time (Regeneration).                                                        |        |
| 2                      | You are never hungry.                                                                            |        |
| 3                      | Poison, Wither and other bad effects are cleansed from you and nearby players every few seconds. |        |
| 4                      | Nearby players heal too - you're a walking health aura.                                          |        |

Common - the server's best medic. No damage; pure sustain.

RARE SETS

Need a level-20+ table. Each one is built around a single specialty rather than raw power.

| Blueprint of the Revered Inventor |                                                         | RARE |
|-----------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------|------|
| Pieces                            | Effect                                                  |      |
| 1                                 | A turret auto-shoots the nearest hostile mob near you.  |      |
| 2                                 | It fires faster and slowly repairs your worn gear.      |      |
| 3                                 | It hits up to 3 mobs at once.                           |      |
| 4                                 | Heavy cannon - shots hit harder and knock enemies back. |      |

Rare - automated defense; mine while it fights.

| Breath of the Storm's Fury |                                                                                           | RARE |
|----------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------|
| Pieces                     | Effect                                                                                    |      |
| 1                          | Permanent Speed.                                                                          |      |
| 2                          | No fall damage, and you drift down slowly (Slow Falling).                                 |      |
| 3                          | Nearby players get Speed too.                                                             |      |
| 4                          | Jump while sneaking to blast off on a gust and glide across the map (8s cooldown). |      |

Rare - free mobility; the travel tax, gone.

| Edge of the Bloodharbor Ripper |                                                                                  | RARE |
|--------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------|
| Pieces                         | Effect                                                                           |      |
| 1                              | Sneak and stay still to turn invisible .                           |      |
| 2                              | Your hits instantly kill mobs below 25% health (normal mobs, not bosses). |      |

|   |                                                                   |
|---|-------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 3 | Your kills heal you .                                      |
| 4 | Your first hit out of invisibility deals big bonus damage. |

Rare - stealth: skip fights entirely, or delete the weak.

| Hand of the Card Master |                                                                                                                                                      | RARE |
|-------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------|
| Pieces                  | Effect                                                                                                                                               |      |
| 1                       | Mobs, ores and chests drop more , and give more XP.                                                                                           |      |
| 2                       | Stacked Deck - every 4th hit deals bonus damage.                                                                                              |      |
| 3                       | Hold a sword and right-click to pick a card ; your next hit spends it - Gold (stun), Red (fire burst), Blue (heals you). |      |
| 4                       | Sneak + right-click a sword for Destiny - every creature nearby glows through walls, then you blink to where you're looking (90s).            |      |

Rare - free teleport, extra loot, and a stun on demand.

| Mourning of the Shepherd of Souls |                                                                                                   | RARE |
|-----------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------|
| Pieces                            | Effect                                                                                            |      |
| 1                                 | Killing a mob heals you 2 hearts .                                                         |      |
| 2                                 | Your kills raise a Mist Walker ghoul that fights for you for 30s (up to 2 at once). |      |
| 3                                 | Up to 4 Mist Walkers , and they are tougher.                                               |      |
| 4                                 | The Maiden of the Mist walks with you - a stronger, permanent ghoul that never crumbles.   |      |

Rare - a small disposable army that fights while you do.

| Shell of the Armordillo |                                                                                | RARE |
|-------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------|
| Pieces                  | Effect                                                                         |      |
| 1                       | Thorns - attackers take reflected damage.                               |      |
| 2                       | Passive Resistance - you are a rolling ball.                            |      |
| 3                       | Double-tap sneak to Powerball - a burst of Speed . (8s cooldown) |      |
| 4                       | Heavy hits briefly harden you into extra Resistance.                    |      |

Rare - tanky travel; reflect damage and cover ground fast.

| The Chronokeeper Chosen |                                                                                                                                              | RARE |
|-------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------|
| Pieces                  | Effect                                                                                                                                       |      |
| 1                       | Permanent Haste and Speed ; enemies you hit are slowed .                                                                |      |
| 2                       | Keep all your items and XP when you die .                                                                                             |      |
| 3                       | Your hits plant a time bomb that blasts (AoE + slow) after 2 seconds.                                                                 |      |
| 4                       | A killing blow is rewound - you snap back to full health (90s cooldown). Sneak + right-click an ally to grant them one rewind. |      |

Rare - never lose your stuff, and cheat death on a timer.

LEGENDARY SETS

The top table roll - a maxed 15-bookshelf table at the top slot, or an enchanted book out of a loot chest. Each is a complete build on its own.

Fire below the Mountain

LEGENDARY

| Pieces | Effect                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
|--------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 1      | Living Forge - craft anywhere ( sneak + right-click with an empty hand opens a crafting grid). Everything you mine drops already smelted, fuel-free. Immune to fire, lava and magma , never burn.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| 2      | The Smith's Efficiency - ores drop doubled . Forge Aura: you and nearby players get permanent Haste II , and nearby furnaces smelt twice as fast .                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| 3      | Masterwork Gear - all your worn/held gear is truly unbreakable , and anvils cost no XP . Sneak + right-click a tool or armor piece to upgrade it one material tier (keeps its enchants) if you carry the materials - iron→diamond costs 2 diamonds , diamond→netherite costs 2 netherite scrap (scrap, not ingots). Anvils never ask for levels and never say Too Expensive - each use quietly eats 1 diamond instead.                                                                                                                      |
| 4      | The Great Forge - swap hands (F key) to raise a forge of netherite and magma around a god enchanting table , a full max-level (15-bookshelf) table that offers the best enchants at +2 over the vanilla cap (Protection VI, Efficiency VII, Unbreaking V...) - and those over-cap levels are real : every level past the vanilla cap adds proper damage, and anvils will never downgrade them back. Everyone nearby gets Fire Resistance . It can't be mined , lasts 1 minute , then vanishes on its own. 1 minute cooldown . |

Legendary - the second of its kind. Same brutal odds as the Revenant: a maxed 15-bookshelf table at the top slot, or an enchanted book from loot chests.

Complete the full set and you are given the Hammer of the Forge God - it mines a 3x3, auto-smelts and doubles everything it breaks, and never wears out (only works while you wear the full forge-set). Sneak + right-click with it toggles Silk Touch mode - blocks drop whole instead of smelted and doubled. It also hits like a god: +9 attack damage, slow swing.

Grief of the Ruined King

LEGENDARY

| Pieces | Effect                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
|--------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 1      | The Black Mist follows you - kills heal you and give a burst of Speed .                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| 2      | Your hits deal +8% of the target's current health as armor-piercing damage and heal you for half of it.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| 3      | Undead never attack you - zombies, skeletons, husks, drowned, strays, wither skeletons and phantoms ignore their king.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| 4      | Killing any mob binds its soul : you gain absorption from it and you inherit its passive for as long as you carry it. Every one of the game's 92 mobs has its own passive and its own active power - there is no generic fallback. Only one soul at a time; a new kill replaces it. While holding the Blade of the Ruined King : sneak + right-click uses the soul's active power (20s cooldown, the soul is kept), and a plain right-click releases it as a loyal spirit of that exact mob for 60s. A killing blow is refused - the bound soul is spent instead and you heal to full. |

Soul powers - what sneak + right-click does depends on whose soul you carry. Blaze/Ghast hurls a fireball; Creeper detonates (hurts enemies, breaks no blocks); Enderman/Shulker blinks you to where you are looking; Wither/Wither Skeleton fires a withering blast; Skeleton looses a five-arrow volley and Stray a freezing one; Warden sounds a sonic boom; Illagers roar a war cry; Ravager/Goat/Polar Bear charge; Guardian/Drowned call the tide; Squid blinds with ink; Phantom/Bat/Parrot give you wings; Slime bounces and Rabbit/Frog leap; Witch brews; Iron Golem/Hoglin hurl everything away; Zombies drag enemies in with the horde's grip; Wolf howls (buffs your allies); Spider/Bee/Pufferfish poison; Copper Golem calls lightning; Creaking roots and blinds; Sniffer grants luck and haste; Villager grants Hero of the Village; Ender Dragon breathes.

Soul passives - carried traits include Fire Resistance (nether mobs), Water Breathing (aquatic), Speed (spiders, cats, horses), Night Vision (Enderman, Warden, Vex), Resistance (golems, Ravager, Panda), Slow Falling (fliers), Regeneration (Witch, Allay), Jump Boost (Slime, Rabbit, Goat), Haste (the undead), Strength (illagers), Luck (Sniffer, Villager) and Saturation (farm animals).

Legendary - possession and near-immortality, but only while you hold a soul.

Complete the full set and you are given the Ruined Blade - the Ruined King's sword. +8 attack damage, and every hit deals 12% of the target's current health as armor-piercing damage (it ignores armor, so it bites tanks and geared players) and heals you for half of it.

Roar of the Relentless Storm

LEGENDARY

Bloodied fury (all tiers): the lower your health, the harder the bear fights - you gain +1% damage dealt AND +1% damage reduction for every 1% of health you are missing, each capped at +25% (reached at the full set; fewer pieces scale it down). The damage reduction even applies to true damage - nothing bypasses it.

| Pieces | Effect                                                                                                            |
|--------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 1      | Your hits crackle with lightning for bonus damage .                                                        |
| 2      | Under half hearts you deal more damage and gain Resistance - the bear fights hardest when bloodied. |
| 3      | You cannot be slowed and keep Strength while fighting.                                              |
| 4      | Every few hits a real lightning bolt strikes your target and arcs to nearby mobs ; you regenerate.  |

Legendary - a melee bruiser. Good at everything in a fight, master of none.

Complete the full set and you are given Stormfang - the Relentless Storm's axe. +10 attack damage, and every hit chains lightning to up to 3 nearby enemies.

Wrath of the Unconquered King

LEGENDARY

A fire set built around Reckoning - a ring of flame you switch on and off at will. It costs nothing to hold, but everything it earns resets the moment you end it, so the reward is for staying in the fight.

| Pieces | Effect                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
|--------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 1      | You are immune to fire, lava and magma and never go hungry . The ring sets nearby enemies ablaze ; anything that strikes you catches fire and burns for it , and everything you hit is set alight .                                                                                                                                                        |
| 2      | Your hits syphon durability out of the target's gear and into your own, and enemies missing any armor take double fire damage.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| 3      | The ring can set blocks alight ( sneak + right-click Demon's Bane to toggle; the fire burns out on its own and destroys nothing permanently), and you heal for half of all damage you deal .                                                                                                                                                                             |
| 4      | While reckoning, your damage and fire grow +1% per second and per kill (up to +75% ), you swell to 2x size with matching speed and jump , you take 20-55% less damage , everything the fire kills feeds you its XP wherever it dies, and you hold a molten shield (regenerating absorption, up to 6 hearts ) that every kill refills. |

Legendary - rolls at a maxed 15-bookshelf table at the top slot, or turns up as an enchanted book in loot chests.

Complete the full set and you are given Demon's Bane - right-click it to enter or leave Reckoning, sneak + right-click to toggle whether the ring burns blocks.

THE ULTIMATE SET

One tier above legendary, and the only set that cannot be found. It is forged out of two finished legendary sets.

Will of the Iron Revenant

ULTIMATE

The one set above legendary, and the only one you cannot find. It is forged: put a Wrath of the Unconquered King piece and a Grief of the Ruined King piece of the same slot together on a crafting table, and the two dead kings become a single netherite Revenant piece with an emerald Silence trim. Two legendary sets are consumed to build one ultimate one, so a full Revenant set costs eight legendary pieces.

Nothing counters the Revenant. Anything it strikes stays struck - no other set may revive, rewind, reflect or shrug off its work, and a kill it lands is final.

A death-and-armor set. Every mob or player you kill harvests a Soul (bigger kills = more), banked and shown on a boss bar. Souls make you tankier and are your currency for cheating death.

| Pieces | Effect                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
|--------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 1      | Global Unbreaking III and you begin harvesting souls on every kill.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| 2      | Souls sustain you (passive regen) and repair all your gear ( Mending ). Every 10 banked souls = +1 armor toughness (max +24) - the more you've killed, the harder you are to kill.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| 3      | 40% of damage you take becomes a decaying overshield (never heals more than you lost), plus a flat 25% damage reduction , and immunity to fire, drowning and hunger .                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| 4      | You cannot die - a lethal blow instead spends 25 souls to revive you at full health; with no souls left, you truly fall. You also raise an Undead Legion of your 10 strongest kills , ranked by each mob's true combat strength (every mob in the game is scored - a Warden or Wither tops the list, then heavies like Ravager, Iron Golem and Evoker, then casters and ranged mobs, with weak mobs at the bottom; a geared player ranks high too). Anything you or your thralls damage is marked - if it dies within 10 seconds by any hand , it's raised (no need to land the final blow). A higher-priority catch replaces your weakest thrall. Your thralls' kills also grow the Legion, feed you souls, and still drop XP. Player thralls wear their own stolen gear. Thralls glow so you can spot them, auto-attack hostile mobs, and never break or grief blocks . Against players they hold their fire - they attack a player only while you're attacking that player , never on their own and never even if a player hits them. They never attack, knock back, or debuff you - a Warden thrall will not sonic-boom you and its Darkness (and an Elder Guardian's Mining Fatigue) never touch their own master. Your Legion persists across restarts and fallen thralls re-raise. Removing any piece = instant death, wipes your souls , and frees the Legion - player-thralls drop their gear, mob-thralls drop nothing (no farms). Nightfall right-click cycles the Legion through Normal (hunt hostiles) → Passive (hold, attack nothing) → Stored (despawned but kept - cycle again to re-summon them). |

Ultimate - it never appears at an enchanting table, in a loot chest or on a book. The forge recipe is the only way it exists.

Complete the full set and you are given Nightfall - the Iron Revenant's mace. It has no blade of its own: every hit deals 10% of the target's max health as true damage, and it cycles your Legion (Normal / Passive / Stored) on right-click.

☞ Getting an enchant: enchant an armor piece or a book at a table, then anvil the book onto each piece. Build the set up one tier at a time. A book can hold any of these, so books are the easiest way to farm them. The custom enchants roll often at a table; the two legendaries stay rare (a maxed table, or ~2% enchanted books in loot chests, now ~4%). Each armor piece can only hold ONE set enchant - they're mutually exclusive, so you can't stack two sets on the same gear. More pieces of the same set worn = higher tier.

Vein Miner & Tree Feller (VeinXP)

Break one block of an ore vein or one log of a tree and the whole thing comes down - and unlike most vein miners, you keep all of the mining XP.

| Item                        | What it does                                                                                                                                       |
|-----------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Ore veins            | Mine any ore with a pickaxe - the whole connected vein breaks (across the deepslate line too), up to 256 blocks.                            |
| Full XP              | You get the real mining XP for every ore in the vein (diamond, coal, lapis, redstone, quartz...). Silk Touch gives 0, exactly like vanilla. |
| Trees                | Break a log with an axe and the whole tree of that wood falls; leaves decay on their own.                                                   |
| Fortune / Silk Touch | Apply to every block. Your tool takes durability per block (respecting Unbreaking) and stops before it would break.                                |
| Controls             | Sneak to mine a single block instead. /vein toggles it on or off for you.                                                            |

LoL Items

46 League-of-Legends themed items, each with a real ability plus vanilla stat bonuses (shown in green on the tooltip). They spawn in unopened structure chests - roughly a 1-in-4 chest holds an Epic and 1-in-17 a Legendary. Right-click items are used by holding and right-clicking.

On-hit weapons

| Item                              | What it does                                                                 |
|-----------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Infinity Edge              | 25% chance on hit to deal 250% damage. +4 attack damage.                     |
| Kraken Slayer              | Every 3rd hit deals bonus armor-piercing true damage.                        |
| Bloodthirster              | Heal 30% of melee damage; overheal becomes a shield.                         |
| Blade of the Ruined King   | On-hit: 8% of the target's current health as true damage, heal + slow.       |
| Lord Dominik's Regards     | On-hit true damage scaling with the target's max health.                     |
| Void Staff                 | 40% of every hit is dealt as armor-piercing true damage.                     |
| Guinsoo's Rageblade        | 1.8-style combat (no swing cooldown); every 3rd hit strikes twice.           |
| Trinity Force              | Every few hits your next strike is empowered + Speed.                        |
| Divine Sunderer            | Periodic strikes crit and heal you.                                          |
| Ravenous / Titanic Hydra   | Attacks cleave nearby enemies (Ravenous heals; Titanic scales with your HP). |
| Statikk Shiv               | Every 4th hit chains lightning to nearby enemies.                            |
| Serpent's Fang             | Strips enemy shields and applies Weakness.                                   |
| Duskblade of Draktharr     | Strike from stealth for bonus damage; invisible on a kill.                   |
| Mortal Reminder            | On-hit Grievous Wounds - cuts the target's healing.                          |
| Wit's End / Nashor's Tooth | Bonus magic damage on hit (Nashor's also grants attack speed).               |
| Eclipse                    | Every 2nd hit deals true damage and grants a shield.                         |
| Maw of Malmortius          | Lifeline: shield when you drop to low health.                                |
| Liandry's / Riftmaker      | Burn scaling with max HP; ramping damage the longer you fight.               |

| Item                           | What it does                |
|--------------------------------|-----------------------------|
| Rylai's Crystal Scepter | Every hit slows the target. |

Bows

| Item                      | What it does                                                 |
|---------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------|
| Rapid Firecannon   | Every 6th arrow is supercharged - calls lightning on impact. |
| Runaan's Hurricane | Arrows split, striking additional nearby enemies.            |

Armor (passive)

| Item                       | What it does                                             |
|----------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------|
| Guardian Angel             | Revive once on lethal damage (3-min cooldown). +4 armor. |
| Warmog's Armor             | +10 max health; rapid regen when out of combat.          |
| Sterak's Gage              | Shield + Strength when hit hard (Lifeline).              |
| Immortal Shieldbow         | Shield + regen + lifesteal when you drop low.            |
| Protoplasm Harness         | Below 30% HP: surge of max health, regen and speed.      |
| Sunfire Aegis              | Burns nearby enemies each second. +4 armor.              |
| Thornmail                  | Reflect 25% of melee damage + Grievous Wounds. +6 armor. |
| Frozen Heart               | Chills nearby enemies' attack speed. +5 armor.           |
| Deadman's Plate            | Sprint to build momentum, release a heavy slowing blow.  |
| Spirit Visage              | +25% to all healing you receive.                         |
| Iceborn Gauntlet           | Your attacks create a slowing frost field.               |
| Abyssal Mask               | Your attacks deal +15% to nearby enemies.                |
| Force of Nature            | -10% incoming damage + move speed.                       |
| Jak'Sho the Protean        | Resistance ramps up while you stay in combat.            |
| Death's Dance              | Damage is spread over time as bleed; heal on a kill.     |
| Gluttonous Greaves (boots) | Heal 15% of all damage dealt + move speed.               |

Right-click actives

| Item                      | What it does                                         |
|---------------------------|------------------------------------------------------|
| Zhonya's Hourglass        | Invulnerable but frozen for 2.5s (90s cd).           |
| Youmuu's Ghostblade       | Burst of Speed + Haste for 6s (30s cd).              |
| Randuin's Omen            | Heavily slow all nearby enemies (20s cd).            |
| Mercurial Scimitar        | Cleanse all debuffs + gain Speed (60s cd).           |
| Hextech Rocketbelt        | Dash forward and detonate for magic damage (15s cd). |
| Locket of the Iron Solari | Shield yourself and nearby players (60s cd).         |

Homes

You can save up to 10 named homes and warp between them. They are stored on your player, so they survive restarts.

| Item            | What it does                                                              |
|-----------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| /sethome <name> | Save your current spot. Leave the name out and it is called home . |
| /home <name>    | Teleport to that home.                                                    |
| /delhome <name> | Delete a home.                                                            |
| /homes          | List all your homes with their coordinates.                               |

How to get everything

| Item                              | What it does                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
|-----------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Loot chests                | Explore! Unopened dungeon / mineshaft / village / fortress / bastion chests can hold LoL items and enchanted books.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| Enchanting table           | Enchant armor or a book. Common: Green Father, Starchild, Rabble Rouser, Wandering Caretaker, Armordillo. Rare: Card Master, Chronokeeper, Storm's Fury, Revered Inventor, Bloodharbor Ripper, Shepherd of Souls. Legendary: Fire below the Mountain, Relentless Storm, Ruined King, Unconquered King. Ultimate: Iron Revenant - forged only, never rolled. One set per piece; more pieces = higher tier. |
| Anvil                      | Combine an enchanted book with an armor piece to apply an enchant.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| /vein                      | Toggle vein mining / tree felling on or off for yourself.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| /lol list                  | See every item id.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| /disenchant &lt;name&gt;   | Strip one enchantment off the item in your hand. Costs 5 levels .                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| /lol give &lt;item all&gt; | Admin: get items. Also: green_set, chrono_set, revenant_set, and _book variants.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |

👉 Old items auto-update: if an item's stats change in an update, your existing copies fix themselves automatically the next time you're online - no need to re-obtain them.